The Bulletin is divided into sections by subject headings as a rough guide to the contents of the books noted. An alphabetical list of authors appears at the end of each issue, with classification marks as cross references.

k Ordering

The publisher or supplier is given for all material listed in the Bulletin, and in the interest of speed and efficiency, those wishing to obtain copies are advised to order direct from the individual publishers, or their local booksellers. It is not possible for the IPPF headquarters to deal with orders for material, other than IPPF publications.

Decimalisation of British Currency

On February 15th 1971, British currency was converted to decimal units. The pound sterling (£) is divided into 100 parts known as 'new pence' (p) individually having a value of 2.5 'old' pence (d). The changeover will cause some complications in internal transactions for a short while and the following remarks are only to guide our readers. This and all subsequent issues of the Library Bulletin will quote the new decimal prices only.

For banking and accounting purposes the new ½p will be left out, using an official rounding table which has the force of law. The Library Bulletin will give the price actually quoted by the publisher. Eventually all prices for books and all other commodities will be in whole new pence and this discrepency will disappear.

Note that: £0.52½ may be seen elsewhere as 52½p; also no more than two decimal places are used, i.e. 52½p is never £0.525. £0.52½ should appear as £0.53 on cheques etc.

Issued August 1971.
